

ARTS
CREATIVE COMMUNITIES PROGRAM
PROGRAM GUIDELINES

Deadline: Ongoing

(Also see Guide to Filling out the Creative Communities Application Form)

Background

2010 Legacies Now is dedicated to strengthening arts, physical activity, literacy, sport and recreation, accessibility and volunteerism in communities throughout B.C.

The Arts area at 2010 Legacies Now focuses on new opportunities in the arts and culture sector and seeks to strengthen and enhance the creative capacity of organizations and communities across British Columbia through strategic investments and projects.

The Creative Communities Program addresses the following objectives:

- To increase community engagement in creative activities
- To strengthen the arts sector's economic base and organizational capacity
- To strengthen the arts sector's ability to achieve artistic excellence

Creative Communities Program Categories

The Creative Communities Program provides investments to B.C. municipalities and other local governing bodies to undertake cultural development projects in association with community leaders. The goal of the program is to encourage the use of Cultural Planning by communities to recognize the creative sector's importance in and of itself and in attaining social and economic objectives.

Support is available in two categories. Please note that each category has a separate application form. Examples of funded projects can be found on our website at www.2010legaciesnow.com.

- A. Cultural Mapping - supports assessment and inventorying projects that enable communities to take stock of local cultural assets, strengths, challenges and aspirations for the purpose of establishing the groundwork for the development of a Cultural Plan. It should include a consultation process to engage community members and gain an understanding of their interests and concerns.

Eligible costs in this category include hiring consultants and/or artists with cultural mapping skills, compiling an inventory of cultural assets and needs, public meetings and communication.

B. Cultural Planning - supports communities in developing a Cultural Plan that municipal councils, bands or tribal councils, staff and community partners can implement and use to evaluate their progress. It can also assist communities that have done the preliminary planning, research and community outreach work toward the development of a Cultural Plan, and are ready to take the next steps. Cultural Tourism plans are also eligible, if they are an enhancement to an existing Cultural Plan.

Eligible costs in this category include collecting information (surveys, focus groups, public consultations, and specialized studies such as market research or economic impact studies), hiring consultants to work with local government and community members, and producing and disseminating the Cultural Plan.

2010 Legacies Now has resource toolkits available for both Mapping and Planning processes (PDF files). They can be downloaded at www.2010legaciesnow.com.

General Eligibility

Who May Apply

Please note that the Creative Communities Program does not accept applications from individuals. Applications can be made by arts organizations, but only in partnership with a local governing body.

Applications may be submitted, individually or in partnership, by B.C.:

- Municipalities/Local governments
- Regional governments
- Bands or Tribal Councils
- Association of Arts organizations, in partnership with their local government

Applicants must demonstrate commitment to cultural development in their communities through matching support, and through involvement of community leaders/partners from the arts and culture sector, schools, businesses, recreation, etc. Associations of B.C. arts organizations, including First Nations and Aboriginal, that can demonstrate strong support and involvement from other community partners and their local/regional government are also eligible to apply.

Limitations

The Creative Communities Program cannot assist with:

- Endowments
- Capital expenditures (renovation, construction, property or equipment purchase)
- General operating expenses (including staff salaries, facility costs, regular promotional or marketing activities)
- Competitions, prizes or awards

- Deficits incurred from past activities
- Fundraising, marketing or commercial purposes

Applications may be made to only one category of the Creative Communities Program at a time. It is encouraged that if there is no existing Cultural Map, that a community complete this process before beginning the Cultural Planning phase.

If an applicant has received funding under Category A, a final report must be submitted and accepted before an application to Category B will be considered. Only one application can be received per regional district at any one time. The same regional district may apply again once the final report for the previous project has been approved.

An application to the Creative Communities Program does not preclude the applicant from applying to the Innovations or Catalyst Programs should it meet the eligibility requirements of those programs.

An entity which is part of an application for a regional project may apply for a separate project within the Creative Communities Program.

Activities cannot be funded retroactively.

Assessment

Assessment Process

Eligible applications will be evaluated by staff with the assistance of an advisory committee consisting of leaders in community development and cultural planning. Decisions will be based on the eligibility and assessment criteria described in these guidelines, within the context of the community and regional needs. Consideration will also be given to the geographic distribution of the Program's limited funds throughout the regions of B.C..

Applicants will be informed of the committee's decision in writing approximately 8 weeks after the receipt of an application. Results will not be given over the telephone or by email. Funds will be paid out in two instalments, 80% on signing of a contribution agreement and 20% upon acceptance of a final report.

Assessment Criteria

Applicants will be evaluated on the basis of their ability to:

- Clearly articulate objectives and a realistic workplan that includes consultation with a wide range of community members, taking stock of cultural assets and needs, and developing a vision and strategy for cultural development that is shared by the local government and the community.
- Provide evidence that the people with the necessary skills and experience are available to direct and carry out the workplan.
- Provide a realistic budget that justifies all expenses and includes at least 50% in matching funds from the local government and/or other public or private sector sources.

- Clearly articulate plans for overseeing implementation of the project and monitoring outcomes over a significant period of time.
- Where the applicant has close neighbouring communities, show how consideration will be given to any existing cultural assets and cultural development projects in those communities.
- Provide a CV for the consultant(s); or an RFP outlining the skills required for the consultancy.
- Provide evidence that the local or regional government is committed to developing and implementing a cultural development plan and is partnering with community leaders. Such evidence includes providing matching funds, designating the lead administrative agency that will manage the plan, and identifying community partners. [Category B]

Priority Consideration

Priority consideration will be given to proposals that address one or more of the following:

- Strong support from the local and/or regional government including financial support. A commitment to implement the recommendations and a wide range of community interests for the long term viability of the work.
- Needs and interests of communities that have no cultural development plan, and/or are currently underserved with respect to cultural resources.
- Needs of artists and arts organizations and the benefits of cultural development in other sectors of the community.
- Long-term vision for building creative communities in B.C. beyond the specific project.
- Cultural Plans linked to a municipal or regional development plan or economic development strategy. [Category B]

Other Support Programs

Creative Communities is one of several contribution programs under the Arts area of 2010 Legacies Now. For a description of all programs visit www.2010legaciesnow.com.

Glossary

For the purposes of the Creative Communities Program, a Community usually refers to a geographic region with a governing body. Please contact the Arts area of 2010 Legacies Now to determine eligibility prior to submitting an application.

In-kind Contributions include goods (space used by applicant, equipment, supplies, materials, etc.) and services (volunteer time, transportation, printing, etc.) donated to the applicant. Note: The dollar value of these contributions (what it would cost if the organization had to pay for them) must be reported separately from the cash columns in the budget section.

Partnerships must consist of two or more organizations, each of which is expected to make a clear, identifiable and significant contribution to the project. Partnerships that include non-arts groups or organizations must have at least one partner with a demonstrated track record of experience in cultural programming. Partners share responsibility and often share risk. Organizations that solely provide funding towards the project are not considered partners (such as granting bodies, foundations, sponsors, donors, etc).
